DON'T LET THE SONG GO OUT OF YOUR LIFE.

Don't let the song go out of your life; Though it chance sometimes to howl in a minor strain, it will blend again With the major tone, you know.

What though shadows rise to obscure life's skies And hide for a time the sun; They sooner will lift and reveal the rift If you let the melody run.

Don't let the song go out of your life; Though your voice may have lost its trill, Though the tremulous note should die in the throat, Let it sing in your spirit still.

There is never a pain that hides not some gain, And never a sup of rue So bitter to sip but in the cup Lurks a measure of sweetness, too.

Oh, why should we moan that life's Springtime has flown, Or sigh for the fair Summer time, The Autumn has days filled with peace of praise, And the Winter-bath belies that chime.

Don't let the song go out of your life; Let it ring in the soul while here, And when you go hence it shall follow you thence, And sing on in another sphere.

Then do not despond, and say that the fond Sweet songs of your life have flown, For if ever you knew a song that was true, Its music is still your own. —Kate R. Styles in Exchange.

OLD PROBLEMS OF HIGH AND LOW LIVING.

Two countries, Greece and Brazil, have industrial problems on their hands exactly opposite in character to the problem of high prices for food products that confronts the United States. In Greece the price of currants is so low owing to excessive production, as to be unremunerative, and the Government has under consideration a plan to reimburse growers for destroying 25 per cent of the vines, so that the production from what remains shall be profitable. The cost of this destructive policy will be more than $2,000,000.

In Brazil the yield of coffee became so large several years ago that prices were depressed below the cost of production, and the Government adopted the valorization plan, under which many million dollars were borrowed by the Government and invested in the surplus coffee, to be withheld from the market for the purpose of advancing prices. At the same time laws were passed prohibiting any new planting of coffee trees.

Ten or fifteen years ago prices of corn, wheat and cotton in the United States were so low that there was a widespread agitation among farmers to restrict production. Southern cotton-growing associations entered into agreements to reduce the area of the crop, and projects were advocated for a system of governmental warehouses in which to store surplus grain and cotton, with advances of money by the government to the producers until such time as remunerative prices could be obtained.

A vastly different condition exists now, and the urgent need of the present time is for an increase in the production of nearly all farm products, so that the millions of people who do not own lands may be relieved of the excessive cost of living.

The problem of high prices will be solved by economic law. Farming was never before as remunerative as at the present time, and this fact will stimulate efforts to increase production and effect a readjustment of prices.—Kansas City Star.

has displaced the blind faith in authority which religion would seem to imply. Certainly religion has shared in the progress of enlightenment with all other forms of thought. The persecution which at one time was inflicted in the name of religion by Catholic on Protestant, by Protestant on Catholic, by English churches on dissenters, and by dissenters on one another, would no longer be possible. The animosity of sect for sect has lost the most of its rancor, and today we find religious sects cooperating for common objects. The stress has indeed passed from speculative theology to applied theology; from metaphysics to social ethics. The burning questions today are no longer of force and freedom and free will, for instance, but rather what can the churches do to make the life of man purer and sadder and sweeter. We are learning to realize that the finest faith is confidence—that if we do our part by our fellowmen matters beyond our ken may well be left to a higher power. I do not believe that there is less religion today, but rather that we are learning a new and more vital conception of what religion is. There is not less faith, but there is more intelligence.

You have delayed investigating the stock issue of the Greenville Building and Loan association until it is almost too late. It is a man who does things today who amounts to something. You decided some time ago that you wanted some of this stock, but you have put it off. See C. B. Jones on Monday and purchase some stock of this issue which has always proved a good investment.

A Safeguard to Children.

"Our two children of six and eight years have been since infancy subject to colds and croup. About three years ago I started to use Foley's Kidney and Bladder Remedy, and it has never failed to prevent and cure these troubles. It is the only medicine I can get the children to take without a row." The above from W. C. Orndorff, Green Bay, Wis., duplicates the experience of thousands of other users of Foley's Kidney and Bladder Remedy, cures colds and croup, and prevents bronchitis and pneumonia. Sold by C. W. Staggers Skeptics.

"That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or pimple, staggers skeptics. But great cures prove it's a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons, eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at all druggists."

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Greenville Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Greenville readers.

H. Mount, 115 Roundland St., Greenville, Texas, says: "My first experience with Doan's Kidney Pills took place about two years ago. At that time I was feeling all out of sorts. On getting up in the morning my back ached so severely that I could hardly stoop to put on my shoes. I asked ambition and felt miserable in every way. I had often heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and believing they might prove of benefit, I procured a box at Ford & Pennington's Drug Store. They soon stopped the backache and improved my health. Several times since then I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and from the results received, consider them to be the best kidney remedy on the market."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McBride Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
